

At the University of Graz, researchers and students work across a broad disciplinary spectrum to enlarge our knowledge, and find strategies to deal with challenges our society is confronted with and to shape tomorrow's world. The University of Graz is a place which combines high quality academic research and teaching, where achievement is rewarded, careers are promoted, and social diversity is encouraged – all within a modern, award-winning working environment. Our motto: We work for tomorrow. Join us!

The Department of Dogmatics at the Faculty of Catholic Theology in Graz is of central importance for teaching and research in Systematic Theology. The contemporary relevance of Dogmatics is a core research area at the Graz location. Therefore, in addition to the presentation of the doctrine of faith, value is placed on the dialogical discussion with the religiously or culturally different. The opportunities and challenges of globalised and pluralised societies should be openly addressed. Together with Fundamental Theology and Liturgical Studies, the subject Dogmatics forms part of the Institute of Systematic Theology and Liturgical Studies, which also includes the focus "Theology, Arts and Media".

At the Institute of Systematic Theology and Liturgical Studies at the Faculty of Catholic Theology, the University of Graz is seeking to appoint a

Professor of Dogmatics

(40 hours per week; selection procedure in accordance with Section 99 (1) of the Universities Act (UG); fixed-term employment for three years according to the Salaried Employees Act (AngG); expected starting date October 1st 2022)

The post holder will be responsible for the subject of Dogmatics in its entire breadth in research and teaching. Teaching in the subject of Dogmatics concerns all theological study programs of the faculty (diploma programme in Catholic Theology, teacher training programme in the teaching subject of Catholic Religion, bachelor's programme in the foundations of theological science, master's programme in Religion, Culture and Society, doctoral program in Catholic Theology and doctoral program in religious studies and sociocultural discourses) and, together with the supervision of academic final theses, represents the most important area of responsibility for this substitute professorship. In addition, autonomous research contributions are expected in the subject of Dogmatics or Systematic Theology as well as in the interdisciplinary focus areas of the Institute and the Faculty.

Employment requirements:

- Austrian or equivalent foreign higher education degree corresponding with the position (doctorate/PhD)
- Habilitation or equivalent qualification in Dogmatic or Systematic Theology
- Outstanding academic qualifications in research and teaching in the relevant discipline (commensurate with stage of academic career)
- Skills in higher education didactics and online teaching
- Gender mainstreaming skills
- Doctorate in Catholic Theology (Dr. theol. in the subject Dogmatics/Systematic Theology)
- Professional experience abroad during academic career
- Visible international networking (e.g. in professional societies, at congresses, through projects)
- Previous focus of research and teaching in the subject "Dogmatics" or "Systematic Theology"
- Willingness and special commitment to teaching courses in all theological subject areas
- Experience with digital teaching and willingness to teach in English
- Experience in academic self-administration (including committee work)
- High level of social skills, ability to work in a team and flexibility
- Outstanding German and good knowledge of English

The successful candidate will be highly motivated, aiming for academic excellence and integrity in research and teaching. He/she will have demonstrated ability to collaborate constructively in a responsible manner and inspire colleagues and students in an interdisciplinary, internationally oriented context.

We offer a diverse, challenging, team-oriented working environment and a high degree of personal responsibility. Working hours are flexible and there are many options for further education and personal development.
